

Anna Czypionka

24/03/1981 | born in Weilburg, Germany

Education

2008 - present	Ph.D. student at Centre for General Linguistics (ZAS) Berlin; Berlin School of Mind and Brain
2006 - 2008	Ph.D student at Institute for General and Theoretical Linguistics, Potsdam University
2005	Diplom (corresponds to M.Sc.) in Biochemistry
1999 - 2005	Biochemistry student at Freie Universität Berlin
1999	Abitur at Jugenddorf Christophorusschule des CJD, Braunschweig

Studies abroad

1/2004 - 3/2004	Internship in Bernardo de la Rosa Acosta's work group at the Instituto de Bioquímica Vegetal y Fotosíntesis de la Universidad de Sevilla, Spain
10/2003 - 12/2003	Internship in José Luis Neira Faleiro's work group at Universidad Miguel Hernández, Elche, Spain

Work experience

2007	Tutor (student teaching assistant) for Gisbert Fanselow's introductory German Syntax course
2006-2008	Student research assistant for Prof. Gisbert Fanselow in the Institut für Allgemeine und Theoretische Linguistik of the Potsdam University
2003 – 2005	Student research assistant at the Charité Chronobiology Group

Publications

Biochemistry	The isolated C-Terminal domain of Ring1B Is a Dimer Made of Stable, Well-Structured Monomers; Czypionka et al., Biochemistry, 46 (44), 12764-12776, 2007
Linguistics	Word order and Focus position in the World's languages, Czypionka, Linguistische Berichte, 212, 2007

Skills

Languages

German (native), English, French, Spanish (all fluent)

Computer

General office and scientific computer skills

Other interests

Lesebühne

member of „Lautmalerei“; member and co-host of „Rakete 2000“

Sports

running, swimming, Thai kickboxing